

Automated driving is one of the most important drivers of innovation in the automotive industry. At ALP.Lab, the large research institutions and commercial companies of the Styrian automotive cluster have been working for a year to create a comprehensive test offering for autonomous vehicle technology. Be a part of our team and help shape the future of this exciting topic.

The objective of this role is to take over project management and implementation of acquisition activities.

We are currently looking for an

Project Manager (m/f/d)

Full-time

TASKS

- Acquisition of new projects in coordination with the business and program management
- Analysis and monitoring of ongoing plan fulfilment regarding technical, commercial and deadline objectives as well as the examination of process and result qualities
- Coordination of testing activities and test campaigns in cooperation with test engineers
- Preparation of plans and calculations for offers according to valid guidelines
- Project documentation

OFFER

- Challenging tasks in a young and agile company that is focussed on growth
- Flexible working hours
- Development opportunities at every career level
- Independent field of activity
- Pleasant and cooperative atmosphere
- Flat hierarchies and short office channels

PROFILE

- Completed technical education (Technical college, higher technical college, Mechanical Engineering, Automotive Engineering or Similar)
- Practical experience in project management, preferably in the automotive field
- Willingness to travel (ca. 30%)
- Independent, and problem solving-oriented way of working
- Proficient English language skill
- Customer-oriented and cost-effective thinking and acting

The minimum annual salary, depending on qualification and classification, is EUR 40.600, - gross (fulltime). An overpayment is possible and depends on qualification and the present special experience.

APPLY NOW

Your contact:

DI Gerhard Greiner - +43 664 3769488

career@alp-lab.at